

Call of the muse

I don't care what they think about You and I
I don't care as long as you believe
I don't care what they say about You and I
Just as long as you make my heart sing
 and you'll receive
all the songs that I know have been here inside.
I know they have always been there
But were never set free.
You had the key that was needed to open a door
And the music flows out like never before
'Cause I finally woke up to the call of the muse
 and I'm free.

I don't care what they think about You and I
I don't care as long as you believe
I don't care what they say about You and I
Just as long as you make my heart sing
 and you'll receive
all the songs that I know have been here inside.
I know they have always been there
But were never set free.
My doubts and my worries have Vanished you opened a door,
and the songs that I sing are so simple and pure.
And I finally woke up to the call of the muse
I'm finally awake. It's the call of the muse.
I finally woke up to the call of the muse
And I'm free.

Lyrics by Léah Kline